The Wisconsin Soaring Society maintains a hangar at Hartford Airport (HXF) - a wonderfully maintained grass and asphalt surfaced airport operated by the city of Hartford.

The airport is located at Hartford's North West corner and is bound by County Road U on one side and Arthur Road on the other. The entrance is off County Road U. Airports are small, close knit communities. Ask anybody for additional directions. They will be happy to help.

How the Wisconsin Soaring Society can help you live your dream -

Many people dream of flying, but forget about it for one reason or the other. The Wisconsin Soaring Society and flying club in Hartford now makes it possible and affordable for you to fly for real. With very low cost FAA certificated instructors, anyone can make the long-lost dream of flight come true. Young or older, flying is within reach of anyone fourteen years of age or more.

Soaring flight is little known in the United States, but has a long history in Europe. Taken to the extreme, soaring flight has carried pilots to almost 50,000 feet and from Pennsylvania to Georgia in a single silent day...and without using a drop of gas.

-and soar like a bird...

...which is about as close to being angelic as most of us will ever get.

Two and three hour-flights over the serene Wisconsin countryside are routine.

It's too detailed to describe here. Find out how you can learn to fly like that too.

Please call the number listed elsewhere on this brochure, take a glider ride to see if you like it, or join The Wisconsin Soaring Society. As pilots, we look forward to the delight of making your flying dream come true.

How we do it -

To keep cost low, the club owns - in partnership with participating members - one powerful Pawnee towplane, one aerobatic two-place sailplane, two rugged two-place training sailplanes, and four single place sailplanes.

All our flight instructors are FAA certificated and, like the rest of the club, offer those services to the membership for the pleasure of watching the ground-bound see the world from a different perspective...as safe and secure soaring pilots.
